Act Makes Restrictions Concerning Employees

Employment of women and girls in and about coal mines is prohibited under the terms of the Mines Act, which came into force in the province of Alberta on August 1, 1913. The age limit for boys working under ground is raised to 16 years. Boys over 14 years of age may be employed on the surface, providing they have reached a certain educational standing.

With a view to greater safety in the mines throughout Alberta, the age of managers and pit bosses is raised to 25 years, while firemen must be at least 23 years of age. Provision is made for the appointment of a provincial board of examiners, which may replace the district boards now in force.

An important change regarding the inspection of mines is that workmen may now appoint an outside representative for this purpose, so that they will be in a position to submit a report without fear of dismissal. Numerous minor changes, providing for greater safety by regulating the use of explosives and general working conditions also are made in the new act.

Under the new order of things the men are paid twice a month instead of every 30 days as formerly. This change was demanded by representatives of the miners on the ground that hardship has been caused to miners with families who were often forced to seek credit and pay a higher price for their necessities in consequence.

The act embodies in the main the findings of a joint commission representing employers, working men and the provincial department of mines, which met in the various districts of the province.

The Red Cross in Russia

One of the wealthiest, best organized and most powerful Red Cross associations is that of Russia. It has been organized for a great number of years. The Red Cross nurses of Russia live in communities, and are called sisters, though they take no vows and are free to leave whenever they like. They maintain the Red Cross hospitals in the various cities, and in addition take charge of homes for wounded soldiers and the widows and orphans of soldiers killed in battle. These nurses or "sisterns" receive a training of two years before they are admitted into the Red Cross society. There is an additional training of three years for the "matron" or "physician's assistant." These matrons receive a degree and are permitted to practice medicine. Some of these nurses form what is called "flying detachments," and follow the troops in the field, going about on the battlefield looking for the wounded. Their courage and devotion in the face of danger has called forth the admiration of military and medical authorities from all parts of the world. From the battlefield the soldiers are carried to the field hospital, which is usually a large tent erected some distance back from the firing line. Here the soldiers receive some preliminary treatment and are then sent to the Red Cross hospitals in the cities. The facilities for transporting the wounded are very fine, as they have trains especially fitted up for the purpose, with laundry, ice plants, etc. As the Russian Red Cross nurses work without remuneration, most of them come from the higher classes of society, in fact there are a number of titled women in their ranks.

Kootenay Pass

Coal Deposits

In North Kootenay Pass, at the head of the south fork of the Old Man river, a workable seam has been found in a narrow band of series.

At Coleman three seams of eight feet, 10 feet and 16 feet, respectively, cross the Canadian Pacific railway in a narrow strip. In the Blairmore-Frank areas seams of this formation are exposed in several bands, which form a mineable area of wide extent, and are worked at Passburg, Bellevue, Hillcrest, Frank and Blairmore. At Blairmore there are six seams of 10 feet, 17 feet, three and a half feet, three and a half feet, 17 feet and six feet respectively; while at Bellevue the section shows seams of nine feet, 17 feet, four feet and a half feet, 15 feet, four feet, three and a half feet.

The Livingstone Basin, west of the Livingstone Range, is bounded on the north by Mount Rae, and on the south by Cat Mountain. At Sheep Creek in the north, it shows 13 seams, aggregating 48 feet of coal, while at Cat Creek there are 21 seams with an aggregate of 125 feet of coal.—August Wolf, in the Edmonton Journal.

A commemorative bust of Lord Nelson, mounted on a pillar of "Victory" oak, with a base representing the four Landseer Lions, as in Trafalgar Square, London, will be presented to the Provincial House of Parliament, and has been accepted by the Government. This ceremony will also take place on or about Trafalgar Day.

In some of our correspondence last week appeared an article which, although of very great interest to the reading public, had to be held over on account of a Welsh surname appearing therein. The name contained over sixty letters, which despite our best efforts at manipulation, could not be made pronounceable.

They Need To Read

The Litany

Hillcrest mine explosion took place on June 19th last, when 180 miners—almost the entire male population of Hillcrest, Alberta—were sent to their last reckoning at a moment's notice. Many and long were the agonized wailings of newspapermen at that time. Numerous “gentlemen” peremptorily—from the majority of Britain downwards—forwarded through their secretaries, stereotyped expressions of condolence and regret. To the inexperienced or casual observer, it all looked very real. For us—with the memory of many similar occasions in mind—it had no illusions; and we propounded then that, almost before the sound of the explosion had died away, it would be forgotten by the general public, and a great part of the solicitude expressed for the widows and orphans left behind, would also have evaporated, like any other gas.

After the disaster a general relief fund was opened. That the Dominion government contributed $50,000, and the provincial government of Alberta gave $20,000.
The miners of District 18 of the United Mine Workers of America, however, contributed a sum equal to their meagre earning of three-day weeks.
That brought in the sum of $67,739.20.

The Alberta government has appointed a commission to distribute the general fund which contains the contribution of the province. This commission does not contain one representative of the miners, even though all the killed were members of the union, and despite the fact that the Alberta government has been asked by the district executive board, the present members of the Hillcrest union, and the dependents of the dead miners, to continue in that body. The result is that to date the relief fund is $25 less than given out by the commission.

"Wilt thou take her for thy part, for better or for worse; to have, to hold, to doubly reward, to reward, of in the house? With this let her have her way, consult her many wishes; make the fire up every day, and help her with the dishes? With this, but, comfort and support her father, mother, aunt Jenkins and thicesters sisters, a brother? He had given up his blushing now, too late to tell it, as through the Chapel floor he sank like nally said: "I will."

A certain writer has said that this news paper which took truth for its standard would make a pecuniary success. The press might return the compliment by remarking that no infatuate who took such a paper would ever be likely to live or dead, would occupy the pulpit much longer than Sunday after. The press and clergy go hand in hand with the whitewashed world, every article making little deformities into oblivion. The pulpit, the pen and the gravestones are partners in sin making.

Bellevue Happenings

Archie McLeod, of Blairmore, spent Tuesday in town.

We are still "in the dark," but have hopes of "seeing the (electric) light" some of these days.

Jack Leonard was taken to the hospital last week, suffering from rheumatism, and is doing fairly well.

We feel it our duty to extend congratulations to Tom and Lew on their exquisite grace while making a bow.

A large party, members of the geodetic survey, arrived here Friday night last and are still tied up by the snow. They are working west into B.C.

What might almost be termed the headliner at the Welsh affair Monday night was a two-round boxing bout between Davy (the evergreen, and Hughes. Honors on the whole were fairly even, but Davy was there with a telling punch on occasions.

The benefit to be derived from incorporation were strikingly brought to our notice during the recent snowstorm. It was some pleasant to wade through over two feet of nice soft snow, and "steep" feet of mud below that again. On one occasion our language assumed quite a sulphurous smell, when we lot-a rubber, for instance. We are living in hope that sidewalks will be built after incorporation.

The management of the Lyric Theatre made a change in film service this week, now showing the Mutual programme exclusively. We feel a word of congratulation not out of place—the new service looks good. The feature Monday, being a film story based on the Leekie affair in New York, was a splendid offering. The Friday night dances held at the theatre are being well patronized and the dance for Thanksgiving night, (Monday) gives promise of being a big affair.

The local Welshmen held an "At Home" in their town residence on Monday evening. Some fifteen or twenty invitations were sent out and a large crowd gathered at 8 p.m. Songs were rendered by several of our local Carous, and other grand opera stars. Several boxing bouts were staged, whilst had its devotees, the game being won by Gordon and Grafton; and last, but by no means least, a star dance held the boards. The party broke up about 11 p.m., after having enjoyed a "splendiferous" affair. Come again, boys.

Two local men, Billy Newton and Tom Kynaston, had a narrow escape during the first day's snow. They left on a fishing trip to the South Fork the day before the storm, and were awakened at 3 a.m. by the cold, to find some three inches of snow covering their blankets. A fire was at once made and they dried out, then started for home. Not knowing the trail well, and being confused by the snow, they got very much lost and wandered round in circles for hours. Alternately they struck the river and arrived here at noon, eight hours from the time they started, and with not even a fish to show for their experience.

As one result of the war there is no longer any such city as St. Petersburg. The Russian government, objecting to the German sound of that name, have determined to call their capital Petrograd, which means The Stronghold of Peter.

A dance will be given in the Blairmore opera house on the night of Wednesday, October 21st, under the auspices of the Canadian Red Cross Association. The Colemen orchestra has been engaged for the occasion, and it is expected that a record crowd will be in attendance. Dancing is to commence at 9 o'clock, refreshments to be served at midnight. Gentlemen are invited to the front. The latter, however, are still doubtful as to the nature of the compliment.

Timber Props for Coal Mines to be Purchased in Canada

London, Sept. 22.—Becoming anxious concerning the supply of timber props for coal mines, hitherto largely supplied from Baltic ports, from which the traffic has been interrupted by the war, the British collier owners, in co-operation with the Board of Trade, are sending special commissioners to confer with Mr. Hamilton Wicker, British Trade Commissioner at Montreal, as to the possibility of securing a supply from Canada.

The value of this trade, says Mr. Harrison Watson, Canadian Trade Commissioner, is $20,000,000 annual, but Mr. Watson fears that Canadian exporters should make their prices prohibitive, thinking that Britain is wholly dependent on Canada during the war, whereas suitable timber is also procurable from the south of France and from Portugal. Moreover, Russian Baltic ports have been supplying about half the imports of props hitherto, and Russia, being an ally, the trade would probably revert to these ports after the war unless Canadian prices are made attractive. Mr. Watson also pointed out that another reason why the Canadian quotations should be kept at a moderate figure is that the Atlantic freight rates are considerably higher than those from the Baltic ports, and therefore, the Canadian dealers should make this a consideration if they wish to obtain and retain the trade.

Another important question which the commissioners will be called upon to decide is whether the Canadian timber is suitable from the standpoint of breaking strength.

The five commissioners who sailed on the Royal Edward on Saturday, are W. Windham, representing the Board of Trade; N. Cummings and D. B. Harrower, of the Timber Trade Federation of the United Kingdom; E. B. Whalley, of the Mining Association of Great Britain, and in Gouineau, secretary of the Board of Trade. They will be met at Quebec by Mr. Hamilton Wicker. The commissioners may visit Newfoundland before their return, but they will not decide definitely on all their movements until their arrival in Canada.

Mr. Watson reports also that British iron merchants and crocoting works are acquiring for Canadian wood sleepers suitable for railway construction. Large orders have already been placed in British Columbia, and he thinks that a good share of the trade is procurable for Eastern Canada if the prices and conditions are made attractive—Mail and Empire.

The principal German industry is mining."

Said the lobster and the cod
To the seal,
We'd like to know exactly
How you feel,
For those who kill and skin you
Can't agree:
The English have a notion
You are in Pacific Ocean,
While the Yankees say you live in Bering Sea.
Quoth the seal to the lobster
And the cod,
To trutiful, I am feeling
Very odd:
In fact I'm in a very Dreadful "strain."
And it's not at all consoling
To hear you're not controlling
All the canning and the fishing
And the bait.
Said the lobster and the cod
To the seal,
The trouble you refer to
Is a "deal."
"Twixt the English and the Yankees
And the French."
And I tell you, tell you truly,
We feel ugly and untry,
And this warlike kind of feeling's
Hard to quench.
Quoth the seal to the lobster
And his mate,
This killing sort of business's
Out of date.
It's time that legal murder

A Typhoon in Japan

My room on the second floor rocked and swayed so much it seemed as though the building would fall together. After awhile I grew accustomed to the motion and the noise of breaking glass and dropped off to sleep. The roar of the gale, and although my ear brought me up with a start, the sheet iron shutters of my windows had finally succumbed to the eight inches of pressure of glass, had bent in until the windows, sash and all lay shattered on the floor. A gushing torrent whirled in through the crack between the sash and the frame, the screen and hurled it clear across the room on to my bed and then seized the bed and house and dragged them down. The roof took leave and all past my window as the nerve racking clatter of coal burning into the fire testifies with what it had done and moved on to sea. I retrieved my saturated clothes and went downstairs—Melvin A. Hall, in Century.

Unconscious Memory

The memory of sleepwalkers is occasionally prodigious under the influence of the hypnotic impressions they receive. There is an instance of a poor and illiterate basket maker, who was unable to read or write, yet in a state of somnambulism he would recognize himself as he would present his services while he had not even recognized his own name. He had portions of discourse which he was accustomed to hear in the parish church as a child repeated forty years later. He could not even say a hymn of exchange, as the Jacchans refuse to accept foreign coin in exchange for their wares unless they are easily accessible to money nearby town.

The Jacchans, or their place, will buy for you six pieces of money for a Jacch in his own country as the same value of currency would buy for an American in the home of the United States. The simplicity of the native currency system goes hand in hand with the poverty and the ignorance of the population, active little people—Philadelphians North America.

HER MISSING NECKLACE.

Saint-Hilaire Finally Awoke and Restored It to His Wife

The innocent ignorance of such engrossed him as a naturalist. It is illustrated by an amusing anecdote of Geoffrey Saint-Hilaire the younger. Saint-Hilaire was accustomed to bury himself in his laboratory, where he did not allow the affairs of his business to intrude. One day he entered, in the centre of which was a lady leaning on the arm of her husband. Stepping forward to examine him against all worry of domestic matters.

In his laboratory he was accustomed, being a naturalist, to have various strange animals, after the fashion of Rossetti. Of these a monkey was his wife's pet. She was fond of the necklace of diamonds, of which she was naturally proud. One day this necklace was missing. Madame was in despair and had the house searched, with the exception of Saint-Hilaire's room. She knew his dislike of being disturbed, so she had waited a long time in this room for a long time, so that she could not leave the diamonds there.

A few days later at one of Mme. Saint-Hilaire's "at homes" he had been invited, and the same among the guests who supposed he knew of the disappearance of the diamonds asked him if they had been found.

"What diamonds?" he asked. He called his wife and questioned her. He demanded of her the meaning of this that you have lost?"

She described the diamond necklace. "Ah," said the zoologist, "for several days my baboon had in his possession generally worn about his neck, a similar thing to that described."

"Why," answered Saint-Hilaire, "I supposed that it belonged to him. He seemed to be very fond and proud of it."

Law of Falling Bodies.

A falling body having fallen during one exact second falls 16.1 feet. At the precise end of the second it has acquired a specific velocity of 32.2 feet per second. This carries it 32.2 feet during the second, and so on. The distance fallen during the two seconds. And at the exact end of the second—second the acquired velocity is 32.4 feet per second, and so on—New York American.

What Any Woman Knows.

"My dear," remarked Jones, who had just finished reading a book on "The Wonders of Nature," "this really is a remarkable work. Nature is a remarkable Stupendous! When I read a work like this it makes me think how puny, how insignificant I am."

"I then scuffed his better half." "A woman doesn't have to wade through 400 pages to find out the same thing," Judge.

Their Brand of Pride.

To a woman who started life as a poor apprentice a friend said, "Your women folk must be proud of you, since you are self-made."

"Yes," he answered grimly; "they're about as proud of me as they'd be of a homemade dress."

OUR LOPSIDED BODIES

Legs, Arms, Hands and Ears Are Rarely Perfectly Matched.

I venture to assert that if you measure the arms, etc., in this country, you will not find a person who has a pair of equal lengths," said Dr. C. W. Gadsby in giving evidence in a court case.

"The human body is not symmetrical, as is commonly believed," said a widely known doctor. "The legs vary in length, and sometimes the right is usually bigger than the left; because it is used more. The head is by no means regular in form—in fact, it is often not lopsided."

The left leg is generally a little longer than the right, presumably to accommodate the overdevelopment of the body of the left arm, which is usually somewhat heavier and longer than the left, since ninety-eight out of every hundred people are right-handed. The hands are also unequal in size, and are frequently different in shape, and are always unequal in size, due frequently to the wearing of ill-fitting clothes.

London Mirror.

An Old English Custom

In the northern countries of England there was practised at Easter upon a least a century ago the custom of "lacing," which still exists. I have before me, writes a correspondent, a newspaper cutting of 1860, giving an account of an old English custom of travel, by an old man, who says, "We were subjected on Easter Tuesday by the maids of a hotel at Crewe. They placed us in a chair, lifted our limbs and pinned us down, and we were never loosed. It appeared that a like privilege might have been held for the exercises on Easter Monday, a privilege which was also denied us. The punishment was a remembrance of a定制 earlier than the Talbot Inn, Shrewsbury, where the master, who in addition had to pay a fee, was compelled to stand in the space of two days the bit of steel inserted from my eye, and I found that I had received considerable ease right."

With a Word to the Woman Who Would Men Ever Get Anywhere,

Would men ever get anywhere, do you think, if they fussed around with many disengaged thoughts as most women do? And the worse of our carelessness, we are, the more we are given to pride, which is really one of the most vicious habits of our sex.

We have all seen the swelling satirical papers, complimented upon a pretty woman, announces, "I made it myself!" And we have all heard the chorus of voices, "How do you like it?"

It is a great source of pleasure to us, perhaps, to borrow the pattern, but really, what is there about the seat which should be so plume here?

Suppose that a man should point a pistol at another's neck and say, "Lo! I make these trousers!"

To Tommy Atkins

Of course we're strictly "neutral" and we shouldn't say a word. About the time we got married when the Kaiser drew his sword, it isn't our durn picnic or business, that is true.

But you're our own blood-brothers and, Tommy, we're with you.

Our fathers fought beside you in wars long ago,

And when we had to lick you once, but that is past, you know.

Twas nothing but a family row, we fought brothers do,

And now old Tommy Atkins, you bet that we're with you.

We may not be beside you on the soggy battlefield,

We may not help you 'ard when the charging bungles sound,

But we'll bekin' our last dollar that you'll lick the German crew,

Go to it, Tommy Atkins, and you bet that we're with you.

We may not shout in triumph when you check the mad advance,

We can't dance with joy when you've proved yourself in France.

We're "neutral," Tommy Atkins, and you understand, you do.

That outside o' bein' "neutral," we'll bebin' high on you.

A Yankee Brother in Vancouver Province.
